The Indiana Methodist conference has condemned the use of tobacco as uncleanly and unchristian, and the delegates promised to preach against it once each year.

Some col. of the Spies strip, is writing Col. D. R. Anthony anonymous letters in which he will murder Col. Anthony within two weeks. The neck of the mercantile is itching for the same halber which will be used at Chicago.

Maxwell, the condemned murderer, who is awaiting execution in St. Louis, is said to have become completely unwell, and to show in every movement his distress. He rolls and tosses all night, talks and starts in his sleep, and is said to be haunted by a vision of the murdered Preller.

That man Branscombe, if he is what his home papers represent him to be, must be a well-to-do man. A subscription has been taken up to purchase clothing for his old father-in-law, whose money Branscombe got. The well-to-do committee should hide their heads for very shame.

The officers of the Allen road declare that the moment the Atchison begins to build a line to Chicago they will commence the construction of a line from Kansas City west or southwest, as otherwise it would not be able to compete for traffic with the other roads, all of which would have independent lines west of the river.

WHY I LOVE YOU.

Written for the EAGLE.
 Ask of the sun, why he kisses the flowers,
 Birds, why they sing in the green leafy bowers,
 Waves, why they fondle the tinted sea-shell,
 Let them answer, and then, dear,
 Perhaps I can tell.
 Ask of the wind that caresses the trees,
 Why he whispers so lovingly low, and then these Why they shelter the grasses that grow in the dell,
 Let them answer, and then, dear,
 Perhaps I can tell.
 Ask of the rain drops and sparkling dew,
 (No doubt they will tell it for me and for you)
 Why they make of each blossom a nectar-filled well,
 Let them answer, and then, dear,
 Perhaps I can tell.

Ask of the fair sky the depth of its blue,
 Ask why the stars shine so constant and true,
 Ask why the moonlight so gently and low,
 Let them answer, and then, dear,
 Perhaps I can tell.

One more, ask the river that flows to the sea
 Why it plays with the pebbles in turbulent gloe,
 Why they both kiss the sands as the tides
 ebb and swell,
 Let them answer, and then, dear,
 Perhaps I can tell.

WICHITA AS A MANUFACTURING CITY.

A Few Thoughts Upon a Subject Which is Uppermost in Many Minds.

As is well known the EAGLE has opposed the granting or giving of subsidies to all companies proposing any special line of manufacture, upon the ground that any manufacturing that could not succeed without being so bolstered could not live in any event. Nine times out of ten where a community gives a bonus for the establishing of a manufacturing interest that community is either swindled out of their money or are left with an elephant on their hands. The kind of factories which succeed are only such as grow up under a legitimate demand for the products of such factories, which demand must be supplied at rates which will effectually shut out distant competitors. The last kind of industries, however small the plant, never fail of development and success.

The greatest commercial cities of any country are the greatest manufacturing cities of that country. People ordinarily do not understand that proposition to be true, but statistics nevertheless show that it is true. The products of the class of manufacturing which fall on to commercial life consist of the thousand and one little attachments and component parts of what civilization has determined as necessities. These are found upon the walls, on the tables about our homes, in our shops, our offices, in fact, everywhere. Their name is legion and they are the products of the labor of men, women and children in commercial cities, and the production of which hinges upon other and like industries which flourish only with commercial life. To illustrate, take for instance a wholesale manufacturing of harness and saddles and how many auxiliary manufacturers are necessary to produce the buckles, the tacks, the brads, the buttons, the leopards and the dozens of other necessary and ornamental articles made of iron and brass for that trade alone. Take a wholesale grocery and following it are the canning establishments, the tinner to make the cans, the man to make the boxes, the printer to make the labels, etc., the factory to make the crackers, and its boxes, labels, etc.; the factory to make the candy, its boxes, labels, etc.; the packers for the meats, the makers of the soaps, etc., etc., all hanging on the single line of wholesale grocery. So must all other lines of commercial interests and commercial life to tell about which would employ columns of space and detail.

Now the line of manufacturers which the average citizen cries out for and is willing to give a bonus to, is some specialty, of either wood, leather, iron, glass, brass or steel. Every city depending upon either of the classes named, is ever at the mercy of fluctuating markets. The average town or city which depends on any specialty made of woolen, cottons, silks, iron, wood or glass, are down at the head, dead and in the sands of a credit system nine months of every year, because the market for either their raw material or for their manufactured article is that from overproduction, want of a demand, or other cause, while commercial cities with their lines of manufacture, which depend on the demands of commerce in the every day necessities of life, flourish continually. The specialists, besides, generally employ nature-made experts only, while the lines of manufacture which fall on to or hinge upon commercial life, employ men, women and children the year around, who will be found comfortably housed at light labor in great blocks of buildings.

Briefly, it has been for these reasons that the EAGLE has opposed the offering of bonuses to individuals and companies who have proposed putting in plants of special manufacturing in Wichita. Nobody can fail to understand that if by the offer of a bonus Wichita could secure a factory employing five thousand men of families, in producing thermometers and the factory should fail because of the absence of a demand for our specialty, that Wichita would be infinitely worse off than if she had never secured the thermometer factory, or ever induced the five thousand experts to bring their families to the city. Upon the other hand nobody can fail to understand that if some man should start up an establishment costing ten dollars to manufacture hog-nose rings to meet an existing demand from farmers and the demand should have grown until his factory was worth a million of dollars and employed five thousand men, that it would be a big thing for Wichita as long as corn grew and hogs fattened.

These reflections are called out by the fact that we find several of Wichita's little manufacturing interests are growing and developing rapidly in response to an increasing demand for their products. There are twenty or thirty establishments here which have been counting their cash-pieces and the number of men employed. The increasing and growing demand comes of our growing and spreading commercial life and interests. And they will grow and increase. And these are the class of manufacturers the EAGLE will endeavor to encourage and foster. There is no call now to enumerate. But last spring, in talking in this same strain, the EAGLE sent out and gathered up in a single day, all of Wichita's manufacturing interests, including her mills, foundries, furniture makers, planing and sash and door, harness and wire fence, marble and printing, pumps, etc., etc., and we found that we had five hundred and twenty-seven people directly employed in our various manufacturing. Since that time we have had several new lines added while all of the old lines have increased their force, and all, without a single exception, are fully employed and doing well.

In conclusion, whenever a wild-eyed citizen rushes upon you with the startling announcement that he has just learned that by raising a modest bonus, a very large cannon foundry and glue factory can be secured for Wichita, ring your chestnut bell on him and go about your business.

W. J. Gould says there is an empire of country in Western Kansas and the Indian Territory the future probabilities of which it is almost impossible even to imagine, an empire large for any Missouri river town to hope to control. Wichita is the present and will be the future metropolis of that empire.

Lawrence Journal: The Seventh Kansas district is probably the most populous district represented in the United States Congress. It undoubtedly has a population sufficient for two members of congress. The next census will give a very largely increased congressional representation under the present apportionment.

The report of Grand Secretary Burdette shows that there are now in Kansas 288 lodges of Odd Fellows, twenty-five new ones having been organized during the year, with a membership of 13,021. The receipts of the lodges the past year have been $110,004.30, and the disbursements $84,172.20; of which $82,824.84 went for expenses, leaving $18,224.84 for relief. The grand lodge is to meet at Wichita next year.

The Newton carriage factory, to which the town gave $20,000, has been closed by the sheriff—El Dorado Republican.

The EAGLE was severely criticised for not standing by the proposition to give that bonus to the same concern. Our answer was that the city of Newton would either lose her bonus or own the factory inside of two years. An enterprise or concern that cannot live and succeed without a bonus cannot win one.

Mr. Blaine has a good story about General Grant, who once visited Maine and rode through the state with ex-Governor Washburne and his favorite son, Washburne was boasting of Maine's glories, when General Grant, nudging Blaine, said: "I believe Maine is a great corn state; some of the corn patches we've passed through remain in the eye of the cornfields in Illinois, in which a man on horseback cannot reach the tassels." Washburne did not for a moment see that in one case the horseman could not reach up to the tassels and in the other case he could not reach down to them.

The latest discovery, and one that interests the people of Wellington, is the finding of salt in the hole that is being sunk for coal. This certainly will prove to be a profitable find, and the people may expect soon to consume the salt of their locality, for when coal is asked for salt is given. This is prophetic of a boom, and now an opportunity is presented for our enterprising capitalists to show their spirit.—Wellington Post Card.

If the Postal Card will refer to the back files of the EAGLE it will see that the week that the proposition was adopted to sink that hole the EAGLE told Wellington that they would find no coal, but that they would, within six hundred or a thousand feet, find saline waters infused with a gypsum taste and some gas. The salt water found is probably of little commercial value.

THE JUDICIAL AMENDMENT.

To the Editor of the Eagle.
 GODDARD, Oct. 16.—I assure you I am astonished at the reply of our distinguished friend, H. C. Sluss, to my article on the constitutional amendment. He says: "I am sorry that the senator did not announce in unmistakable terms his own views upon so important a question. He voted for the submission of the proposition and thereby affirmed that it should be adopted; and it seems reasonable that he should be now able to explain his vote."

Of course it does; and here it is: Would you have me submit to an intelligent people, in whom I had full confidence, a question in which they had a deep interest, and before they had an opportunity of even hearing or discussing that question; step in and decide it myself? Did you, while on the bench, when great questions were submitted to you, allow any lawyer at the bar to decide it for you, or dictate your decision. Such nonsense!

I was perfectly willing to submit this, as all other important questions, to "The people." I might have made a mistake, they never do.

Again you say "I will assert there is not an intelligent and industrious farmer in the State who does not accumulate more wealth each year than either of the Judges." Will you be kind enough to tell me how many farmers there are in Sedgewick county, or in the State of Kansas, that has made this year $2,500. Do you know that the "Drouth and Chinch bug" struck every farmer in Kansas. It is certainly not true that either of these calamities struck the supreme court, especially "A drouth." They may have never been "Accused" of this before?

I voted for the submission of this question to the people in order that they might discuss it, and be prepared on election day to vote understandingly—not to dictate to them, nor even to persuade them, but simply and plainly to refer the whole subject to them.

Let me ask Judge Sluss what evidence had the ordinary business man and farmer in this locality that our supreme court was in distress, either financially or over work. As his letter in yesterday's EAGLE is the first intimation many of us have had of any such trouble.

Is there an actual increase of business, or
